Introductory.

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF OSTEOPATHY was chartered in 1892 under the laws of the State of Missouri governing scientific institutions. Its growth and influence has been marked with unparalleled success. To-day there are eleven hundred graduates of this school, practicing in forty-four states and territories and in Canada, Mexico and Hawaii. During the past year over seven hundred and fifty students have been in attendance. This continued growth and prosperity of the school is due to the success of the practitioners of this science and the fact that the American School has at its head Dr. A. T. Still, the father and founder of osteopathy, who is still actively engaged in school work. Associated with him are fourteen able instructors who devote their full time to teaching. The American School of Osteopathy is the largest and equipped school of its kind in the world. It is without doubt or debate the best school for the purpose for which it was brought into existence, because it is prepared to teach thoroughly all the branches necessary to a complete knowledge of osteopathy. Dr. A. T. Still has devoted every day of a quarter of a century to the study and proof of the efficacy of osteopathy in combating diseases, during which time a sufficient amount of money has been accumulated to build, equip and run the institution. To this is added the experience of many years, both in practice and teaching. The selection of the necessary teachers for all branches can not be done without a thorough knowledge of the basic principles of healing by this method. It is now equipped and in full running order as an institution of learning, created for that purpose. It has gone through all the trials and tests of selecting and retaining the best and most capable minds to impart knowledge. No position has ever been given to any professor merely by personal preference, but because of his fitness, and his capability to impart the necessary and most useful knowledge to advance this science.

The commanding influence of the American School of Osteopathy has been felt in every place where osteopathy has been represented, and in almost every state where osteopathic practitioners have found it necessary to fight for legal recognition. Graduates of this school point with pride and satisfaction to the prestige and public confidence that their diplomas afford them. Osteopathic progress in the line of legal recognition has been met at every step by opposition from the medical fraternity, nevertheless within the last six years fifteen states have passed laws regulating the practice. In almost every state, where osteopathic laws have been proposed, the American School has taken an active interest in securing favorable legislation. Through the efforts of this school and its graduates these struggles have been waged to a successful termination. The policy of the school has always been to assist and protect its graduates. In numerous states where osteopathy has fought for legal recognition, the school at considerable expense has provided means and sent its representatives to assist in conducting these fights before the legislatures.

To day the American School is a fixed and permanent institution. From a business standpoint it is in flourishing condition, owning its buildings and equipments valued at $100,000 and more than that amount of other property. On account of its liberal patronage the trustees are enabled to employ the ablest teachers in the profession at commanding salaries.

Historical Statement.

The underlying principles of Osteopathy were discovered in 1874, by Andrew T. Still, then a practicing physician in Kansas. Dr. Still spent many years in developing the new science, and in putting its principles into practice in the treatment of both acute and chronic diseases. Osteopathy was so successful under his practice that he began to teach the new science to his own sons in 1887. The American School of Osteopathy is the outgrowth of Dr. Still's discoveries and his attempt to give to others the knowledge of this science and art of healing as formulated by himself. In 1892 a charter was taken out and the first regular class was formed. In 1894 a new charter was obtained according to the laws of Missouri providing for educational institutions. The aim and object of the college is to reform medicine and surgery so as to bring the true science of medicine and surgery into harmony with the teachings of nature, and thus establish a true, natural medical school of healing.

A Brief Explanation of Osteopathy.

Osteopathy is a system of treatment of disease by adjustment of all of the parts of the body mechanically. Any minute or gross derangement of bony parts; contracting and hardening of muscle, or other tissues; or other mechanical derangement of the anatomical parts of the body, which must be in perfect order mechanically in order that it may perform its various functions aright, will lead to disease. Lesions of this sort produce disease by interfering with the proper activities of nerves, nerve centers, arteries, veins, and lymphatics, which must function properly in order that health may be maintained. Such inferences lead to congestions, obstructed circulation of blood and lymph, irritation of nerves, and abnormal states of nerve centers. The result is disease, which can be cured only by righting what is mechanically wrong. In health, the adjustment of the various parts of the body is perfect; in disease this relation is disturbed, e. g., if a muscle becomes contracted it will impinge on neighboring structures, also the force exerted thereby may produce a tension which tends to displace the bones to which it is attached. The circulation is impeded, lowered vitality of the part resulting. Osteopathic treatments overcome this contracted condition of the muscles, stimulate the nerve centers to greater activity, and increase the circulation to the parts by mechanical means without the aid of internal medication. Again, when any slight bony lesion causes interference with the function of that part, to cure the trouble, the CAUSE MUST BE REMOVED, and that is done by Osteopathic manipulations. Since disease is due to these anatomical derangements the osteopath cures disease by adjusting these derangements instead of treating symptoms which result. Osteopathy REMOVES THE CAUSE, whether bony or muscular, increases blood flow, stimulates nerve action, in short, assists Nature to overcome disease by adjustment of the machinery of the human body.

Description of Main Building.

Several buildings have been erected since the opening of the school, the present buildings being completed in January, 1897. As it now stands the school represents one of the largest and most complete school buildings in the State. Erected and fitted throughout for the special needs of osteopathic work, it is the only building of its kind in the world.

The outside dimensions are 64x176 feet. The building has sixty-eight rooms, making altogether 30,000 square feet of floor space. The completed structure as it now stands cost in round numbers. $100,000.

The walls are of pressed brick, with mansard roofs of slate and iron. The highest point of the building is the top of the observatory on the north wing, which rises 100 feet above the ground.

The woodwork inside is of oak, cypress and yellow pine, all beautifully finished in the natural wood. From basement to dome there is a complete system of sanitary plumbing, with hot and cold water and steam heat in every room. The plumbing and hardware furnishings costs nearly $15,000. Electric lights are found everywhere from the top of the flag pole on the observatory to the boiler room in the basement, over 600 incandescent lamps being used.

No detail has been overlooked. The structure is complete. It was designed and constructed for osteopathy, by the first osteopath and paid for by money earned in the practice and teaching of osteopathy.

There are in all four floors with attics. These have been fitted up in the most modern and approved methods with a large assortment of apparatus so that the teaching facilities are exceptional.

DISSECTING ROOM.

Descriptive Anatomy.

W. R. LAUGHLIN, M. S., D. O., PROFESSOR.

The first term work in anatomy covers the arm, leg, head, and everything except the viscera, giving especial attention to the anatomy of joints. The second term's work takes the alimentary canal, respiratory system, urinary system, and the cerebro-spinal system.

We take the work thoroughly as we go. Commencing with the shoulder, each bone with its articulations, ossifications, attachment of muscles and blood supply is learned, also the origin, insertion, and nerve supply of each muscle. By the end of the second term the student will be able to give the articulations, ossifications, attachment of muscles, and blood supply of every bone in the body, the relations and branches of every artery in the body, the relations of every viscus in the body, the boundaries of all the ventricles of the brain. The quiz and lecture method is used and the work is made as concrete as possible. Everything is done to make the work clear and practical to the student.

Along with the anatomical work, during these two terms points in physiology and osteopathy will be given without infringing upon either physiological and osteopathic departments proper.

Practical Anatomy.

C. L. RIDER, D. O., DEMONSTRATOR.

This branch of anatomy for the third term class consists of daily demonstrations on the cadaver with frequent quizzes on the part last demonstrated, the work in this term being in a sense a review of the work in the preceding terms, but reference is here paid more especially to the relations of the structures, dissections necessary to expose certain structures, action of muscles and the function of the different organs briefly reviewed, with frequent hints as to the cause of different diseases and the osteopathic treatment of same.

Combining, as we do in this term, the anatomy and the osteopathy of the part makes these demonstrations very instructive to the students, and more fully prepares them for the operating rooms in the succeeding term. In addition we have private classes in dissection under the supervision of the demonstrator of anatomy, for all students who wish to take actual dissection, eight students being allowed one cadaver, thus giving each student a chance to dissect, or see dissected, each part of the human body. Upon completion of the dissecting course, and passing a satisfactory examination in same, each student will receive a diploma signed by the president and secretary of the school and the demonstrator of anatomy. To help defray the cost of the material, a fee of ($12.50) is charged for this course.

General Chemistry.

C. W. PROCTOR, PH. D., D. O., PROFESSOR.

In this course enough of the facts and principles of chemistry are given to enable the student to understand the work of chemical physiology, which comes later in the course. Familiarity with the common elements, their simpler combinations and the laws governing these combinations, is required. Enough laboratory work is given in this term to illustrate chemical action in its phases, and to enable the student to use intelligently the apparatus in common use.

Physiological Chemistry.

C. W. PROCTOR, PH. D., D. O., PROFESSOR.

In the second term of the course the study of the tissues and fluids of the body is taken up, the various sugars, fats, and proteids are carefully studied and tested. Bile, blood, saliva, gastric and pancreatic juices are analyzed, and their physiology studied from the chemical standpoint.

Urinalysis.

A thorough course is given in the analysis of urine, including some quantitative estimations.

Toxicology.

The importance of this work is duly emphasized as an aid to the diagnosis. Poisons, including their effects and treatment are given careful attention. This course in toxicology is intended to prepare the practitioner in osteopathy for such emergencies as may arise in the course of his practice. Accidents or suicidal intentions are the causes of many poisoning cases in almost every community, and a course of this kind is demanded. It is therefore made practical and quite comprehensive.

Neurology.

C. W. PROCTOR, PH. D., D. O., PROFESSOR.

This course consists of a series of lectures on the nervous system, especially on the diseases to which it is subject, and their treatment from the osteopathic standpoint. The importance of this course is emphasized by the large number of diseases of this character which are constantly being treated at this institution, and by the great success of osteopathy in this field.

Gynecology.

M. E. CLARK, D. O., PROFESSOR.

This course consists of lectures and quizzes, delivered daily, during the first part of the senior year. The subject is considered strictly from an osteopathic point of view. The various diseases of women both local and reflex, are considered as to the causes, pathology, symptoms and treatment.

Stress is laid upon the anatomy of the pelvic organs, uterine displacements, bony lesions, osteopathic centers, diagnosis and treatment.

Each student is required to make local examinations of subjects furnished by the school and give treatments under the supervision of the instructor, thus making the work practical.

Operative gynecology has been eliminated as far as possible since a large majority of operations can be avoided by osteopathic treatment.

The course is constantly being increased and made more thorough especially in regard to the relations between bony and muscular lesions as causative factors of female diseases.

Obstetrics.

M. E. CLARK, D. O., PROFESSOR.

This branch is taught by means of lectures and quizzes, illustrated by stereopticon views, skeletons, models and prepared specimens of fetuses in different stages of development.

Special attention is paid to the anatomy of the parts, and the osteopathic methods which are far in advance of other methods of handling cases of labor. Normal labor is especially considered, while the various forms of dystocia are explained and the use of instruments shown. A lying in hospital has been fitted up with a nurse in attendance.

Venereal Diseases.

M. E. CLARK, D. O., PROFESSOR.

This branch is taught by lectures. Stress is laid on the diagnosis of the purely venereal diseases, while the osteopathic cause, diagnosis and treatment of sexual weaknesses in the male is given. Prostatic diseases, weak back, impotency in its various forms are as a rule curable by our methods, hence these subjects are dwelt upon in the lectures.

Practice of Osteopathy.

CHARLES HAZZARD, PH. B., D. O., PROFESSOR.

The course in Practice of Osteopathy consists of daily lectures upon all the common forms of disease, as well as upon the various conditions of disease particularly noted by osteopathy. The etiology and treatment are given from an osteopathic standpoint, special consideration being given to the lesions causing disease, and to the theory of the causation of disease. The treatment is fully described and is illustrated upon a subject.

A special portion of the course is devoted to the osteopathic technique of examination and treatment of the body topically.

Daily quizzes are held in a separate hour. In them the student is quizzed upon the subject matter of the lectures, and upon the common pathology and symptomatology of the diseases.

In this course the student is made familiar with osteopathic diagnosis; symptomatology, pathology, with the lesions causing disease and the theory of their action; and with the methods of treating all diseases. Hygiene, dietetics, etc., are considered in their proper relation to osteopathic therapeutics.

Principles of Osteopathy.

G. D. HULETT, B. S., D. O., PROFESSOR.

The principles upon which the science of osteopathy is based are co extensive with those underlying the science of general biology. Through out this course of lectures the attempt will be made to indicate the application of these general principles to the special subjects of human anatomy and physiology. In accomplishing this purpose the known facts of anatomy and physiology, both normal and abnormal, will be used to show the relation of disease to structure and function. Hence stress will be laid upon the consideration of etiology, diagnosis, and treatment of disease conditions from the osteopathic standpoint. Discussion of lesions, their nature, causes, location, effects, and removal must necessarily be a prominent feature. The different regions of the body will be separately considered in relation to disease conditions resulting from abnormal anatomical conditions presented in those regions, while each principal organ of the body will be taken up for special study.

Although no attempt will be made to enter largely into the domain of physical diagnosis, yet it will be necessary to encroach upon that subject to some extent in the consideration of the principles underlying diagnosis. To this end methods of examination of the body and its various parts will be discussed together with incidental reference to anatomical landmarks.

A few introductory lectures will be given showing the relation osteopathy bears to other systems of healing, indicating their basic differences in principle and practice.

Physical Diagnosis.

CHARLES HAZZARD, PH. B., D. O., PROFESSOR.

A course of lectures upon physical diagnosis, one hour per week, will be delivered before the senior class. In it will be considered the various methods of physical diagnosis, with especial reference to osteopathic diagnosis.

The lectures will be accompanied by demonstrations.

Clinical Department.

A. G. HILDRETH, D. O., DIRECTOR.

This department is one of the most important, and is given the greatest possible attention. The trustees, realizing that the osteopath needs practical experience, have now so arranged the course that the student not only gets practical experience by observation and actual practice, but he also gets the benefit of the experience of the oldest and most successful osteopaths.

This department will be under the charge of Doctor A. G. Hildreth, who will have a strong corps of able assistants.

During the past year's work in this institution the osteopathic therapeutics and clinical demonstrations, with actual clinical practice for senior classes, gave to the student a very thorough drill. There are clinic lectures, with demonstrations of treatment for conditions present, four times a week.

During the year five or six hundred patients come before the clinic classes. Their diseases are diagnosed in the presence of the class, the history of the case is brought out, the lesions causing the condition are pointed out, and the manner of treatment is demonstrated by the professor in charge. These cases are then assigned to the clinic rooms for treatment by the senior students, under the careful supervision of the experienced operating staff of the infirmary and school. Here the student is assisted in locating the lesion, he is aided in making it out by touch, and in applying the proper treatment for its reduction. He is taught all the details in the practical handling and conduct of the case.

Practice in acute cases is given the student by allowing him to take such cases about the city, and his work is here supervised by the operator in charge of his clinic work at the infirmary.

The seniors have the last half of their year's work in the operating rooms, spending from two to four hours each day in actual practice, given under the direction of the ablest and most experienced osteopaths now in the profession.

In this clinic work each student will, in the future, be required to keep an exact record of the cases under his treatment. He must make report of his cases, at stated periods, to the director of clinics, who will examine his case records, keep general supervision of the quality of his work, and recommend him for credit in this course upon the basis of his proficiency in it. The keeping of records and reporting them properly is the written examination that will be required in passing a student.

In addition to the above work, the students of the senior class will be divided into groups of eight or ten, each group to be under the charge of an operator, who will carry them through a special course of instruction in manipulations, examination of the body osteopathically, location of lesions, etc. Each group will be regularly conducted as a class with roll-call, regular hour of meeting, etc. The classes will meet one hour each week.

Surgery.

F. P. YOUNG, A. B., M. D., PROFESSOR.

Our course in operative surgery is not as extensive as is found in most medical schools. Our reasons are obvious. Osteopathy is opposed to the promiscuous use of the knife as is practiced by many physicians of the old school to-day, in the treatment of disease.

The abuse of abdominal surgery, especially in operations for appendicitis, tumors, etc., has led up to this reform. Osteopathy is intended as an improvement on the present practice of surgery as well as medicine. It has been demonstrated that osteopathy can cure such cases without an operation that so often proves fatal to the patient.

Our course is taken up in the last term, which embraces the general principles of surgical treatment of wounds, ulcers, abscesses, fractures, dislocations and injuries in general, also the nature and use of antiseptics as well as the different methods of application of bandages and splints to the different parts of the body. Every opportunity will be taken to make use of such clinical material as may be available for the purpose of presenting the real condition before the student.

Histology.

F. P. YOUNG, A. B., M. D., PROFESSOR.

The course in Histology consists of general lectures which embrace a description of all the elements in the different tissues. These are illustrated by the use of charts, diagrams, micro-stereopticon projections of the tissue under consideration, also practical work in the laboratory where the student is taught the different methods of preservation and preparation of the tissue. Every student has the use of a modern microscope and other materials, and is directly under supervision of the professor. For the practical work, the class meets in sections, but the class as a whole meets in the amphitheatre for the lecture.

The laboratory is thoroughly equipped with all that is necessary for a thorough and efficient study of the subject, everything being of the most modern type.

N. B.—In the practical laboratory courses in Histology, Pathology and Bacteriology the student is required to make mountings of all the normal tissues, of the various pathological conditions and of the pathogenic bacteria.

Pathology and Bacteriology.

F. P. YOUNG, A. B., M. D., PROFESSOR.

This course includes (1) lectures on general and special pathology with special reference to the etiology of parasitic and infective diseases and (2) practical work in the laboratory where the study of special tissues is taken up and the pathological conditions considered in detail. The methods of cutting, preparing and mounting such tissues are taught to the student and each student has the use of a first class microscope and all the necessary apparatus. The nature, extent and process of post mortem examinations are carefully considered and their significance in legal, medical and scientific investigation carefully explained.

The subject of Bacteriology which has assumed such an importance in the diagnosis and prevention of disease is thoroughly taught in the lecture room and also by practical demonstrations in the laboratory. The subject in general is taken up and considered in such a way as to bring out the nature and characteristics of micro-organisms, the different methods of cultivation and separation, preparation of culture media, inoculation and staining of typical bacteria.

These different points are demonstrated to the student so that each may be able for himself to carry on these experiments. Some of the more important pathogenic micro-organisms are considered in reference to the productions of disease in the human body. There is in the laboratory a very complete and modern equipment for the study of the subject in the most practical manner.

Physiology.

FRED. J. FASSETT, A. B., D. O., PROFESSOR.

The instruction in physiology is given in five exercises per week during the second and third terms. The course is designed to give a thorough understanding of the known facts of physiology and to open the way for such as desire it, to more detailed and elaborate investigation. The class-room work will consist for the most part of recitations from assigned readings in standard works on physiology. The recitations will be supplemented by explanatory lectures, and wherever possible experiments. For the latter purpose the school has a very complete outfit of modern apparatus. In addition to the text-book required for class-room work, it is recommended that each student make use of, at least, one other standard work for collateral reading.

In addition to written examinations at the close of each natural division of the subject, an oral examination is held at the close of the third term on the work of the two preceding terms.

Students who on entering school, present evidence of having completed one year in Chemistry or Physiology may take the course in Physiology in their first and second terms rather than in the second and third terms as outlined in the regular curriculum.

SURGERY CLASS,

Hygiene.

FRED. JULIUS FASSETT, A. B., D. O., PROFESSOR.

The course in Hygiene will be given in ten lectures during the second term.

These lectures will deal with the subjects of Water Supply, Disposal of Refuse, Air and Ventilation, Warming and Lighting, Soil and Building Sites, The Communicable Diseases, and the Prevention of Contagion.

This course is intended to present a practical outline of these subjects and deals with all the work covered by the examinations in Hygiene given by various State Boards of Health before whom graduates of this school are examined.

Medical Jurisprudence.

JUDGE ANDREW ELLISON, LECTURER.

These lectures, ten in number, are given to the senior students. Every graduate in the science of osteopathy should be made acquainted with many of those important principles governing and controlling him in his contact with the business world. This work covers the subjects of contracts, civil and criminal liabilities, malpractice, insanity, expert testimony, etc.

It is not intended the lectures shall follow the path of those delivered in law colleges. They will be made to conform to the special wants of an osteopath, and instruct him fully in his relations to the law and his legal liability to patients.

Department of Athletics.

E. C. WHITE, M. D., DIRECTOR.

Athletics at the A. S. O. are organized under the popular plan of student control. The Athletic Association is in close touch with the Trustees of the school who are among its enthusiastic supporters. In their particular season base ball, basket ball, foot ball, tennis, and track athletics, each receive a hearty encouragement.

The prospective student interested in physical development will meet with a student body including graduates from many Universities, men who enjoy pure amateur sports, men of experience in athletics who hold enviable records made in their college career.

Foot ball candidates learn the great game under the instruction of a salaried coach. This department has improved each year since the introduction of the game. Since the organization of the athletic association on the present plan its representatives have made records and its teams have won victories which have given to the A. S. O. a position of prominence and high standing through competition with the best universities of the west. An event of special interest to every student is the annual Field day in May. Competitors making the best records are sent to compete in the meeting of the Missouri Inter-collegiate Athletic Association of which the A. S. O. is a charter member.

Bright prospects are presented for athletics the coming year. Lady students have aroused much interest in basket ball. Many interesting contests are assured in this lively and invigorating game.

Legal Status.

The practice of osteopathy is legalized by legislative acts in the following states: Vermont, Missouri, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Tennessee, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, Montana, California, Indiana, Wisconsin, Texas and Connecticut. Decisions of the courts in many other states permit the practice of osteopathy, but as yet these states have not passed laws regulating its practice. The American School of Osteopathy enjoys the distinction of having legal recognition by name.

The law of the state of Missouri recognizing and regulating the practice of osteopathy reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the state of Missouri, as follows:

SECTION 1. The system, method or science of treating diseases of the human body, commonly known as osteopathy, and as taught and practiced by the American School of Osteopathy of Kirksville, Missouri, is hereby declared not to be the practice of medicine and surgery within the meaning of Article 1, Chapter 110, of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1889, and not subject to the provisions of this article.

SECTION 2. Any person having a diploma regularly issued by the American School of Osteopathy, of Kirksville, Missouri, or any other legally chartered and regularly conducted school of osteopathy, who shall have been in personal attendance as a student in such school for at least four terms of not less than five months each, before graduation, shall be authorized to treat diseases of the human body according to such system, after having filed such diploma for record with the clerk of the county court of the county in which such person proposes to practice; and having filed with such clerk an affidavit that the diploma is genuine, and that he or she is the person to whom the same was issued, and that all the provisions of this act were fully complied with before the issuing of such diploma; whereupon the clerk shall record such diploma in a book to be provided by him for that purpose, and shall endorse upon such diploma the date of filing and recording same, for which he shall receive from such person a fee of one dollar.

SECTION 3. Any person who shall practice, or pretend or attempt to practice or use the system, method or science of osteopathy in treating diseases of the human body without having complied with the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be fined in a sum of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense. Provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed as prohibiting any legally authorized practitioner of medicine or surgery in this state from curing disease, with or without drugs, or by any manipulation by which any disease may be cured or alleviated.

Upon application, the secretary of the school will forward a pamphlet containing the laws of various states regulating the practice of osteopathy.

Requirements for Graduation.

1. The candidate must have attended this school for not less than four terms of five months each.

2. He must have passed examination in all the branches taught in the regular course. He must file with the Dean not less than one month before the close of the term, written notice that he intends to apply for a diploma of graduation.

The faculty, however, wish it understood that even though a student may have complied with the above requirements, they yet reserve to themselves, and will exercise the right of making moral as well as professional qualifications, an element in their decision. Open irregularity of conduct, negligence, habitual and prolonged absence from classes and neglect or failure to comply with the requirements without sufficient reason will always be regarded as objections to the granting of a diploma.

3. The candidate must be at least 21 years of age.

Degree Conferred.

The American School of Osteopathy confers the degree of D. O.—Doctor of Osteopathy.

Tuition Fees and Expenses.

Tuition for the full course of study for students matriculating in September, 1901, or February, 1902, will be $350.00 on time payments or $300.00, if paid in cash at time of matriculation. The school is prepared to arrange time of payment to suit the convenience of the student where satisfactory security can be given but will require in all cases that settlement be made for the full course either by cash or note on matriculation. Interest will be charged on all deferred payments. There are no other charges or deposits of any kind during the course except the price of material for dissection. This admits the student to all lectures, recitations, laboratory work, clinics, etc., as provided in the curriculum and entitles him to diploma upon completion of the course. Students who desire to give note in settlement of tuition are requested to write the Treasurer before the beginning of the term, stating fully their circumstances, security which they propose to offer and references.

Kirksville is a city of nearly ten thousand inhabitants and being located in an agricultural district expenses of living are not great. Good board may be secured at from $3.00 to $5.00 per week, or students desiring them can rent rooms unfurnished and board themselves thereby somewhat lessening the expense. Students will be assisted in finding suitable boarding places when they so desire. Board and rooms can be secured at any time and it is not necessary to make arrangements until after arrival, however, it is advisable for those who wish to rent houses or rooms for house-keeping to make their arrangements in advance. For any information concerning tuition, etc., address.

WARREN HAMILTON,

Secretary and Treasurer, Kirksville, Mo.

Advanced Standing.

Credit cannot be given for work done in other institutions except recognized schools of osteopathy, by which students can shorten their graduation. Graduate physicians are required to attend the full two years and are received on the same basis as other students.

Location.

Kirksville has a population of about 10,000. It is located in the northern part of the State on Wabash and Omaha, Kansas City and Eastern Railroads. The city has all the advantages common to other cities of its size, such as electric lights, water works, paved streets, granitoid and brick walks, handsome public and private buildings.

The city is well equipped with schools, has a High School, Conservatory of Music and Languages, and State Normal. As to churches, nine religious denominations are represented; all have suitable and in several instances magnificent church buildings. They are: Presbyterian, Baptist, North and South Methodist, Christian, Cumberland Presbyterian, Trinity Episcopal, Catholic and United Brethren.

Societies.

The students have established a number of societies for the purpose of professional, social and religious advancement. There are present six permanent organizations, viz: The Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and Knights of Osteopathy, Southern Club, Atlas Club and Axis Club. All of these associations are under student control.

Methods of Instruction.

It is the aim of the trustees and faculty to make this a college in deed as well as in name, and its plan of organization is such as to realize as far as possible, this intention. It is not composed of two or three men who secure a long list of practitioners, each of whom comes in once or twice a week, delivers a lecture of an hour, and is gone again with no further interest in, or care for the work, until the time of his next appointment comes around. On the contrary, the full time and energy of every one of the faculty belongs to the school, and in all of the fundamental departments, the whole time of the instructor or professor in charge is devoted to this department.

In this way careful and systematic study is encouraged, teacher and student are brought into direct contact; subjects not understood are explained, doubtful points made clear and the knowledge gained is exact and systematic. In this way is laid a solid and lasting foundation for subsequent study in the practical work of the course.

The course of study covers a period of two years, divided four terms of five months each. Owing to the fact that a considerable amount of work is to be done in this time, the students find but little time for anything outside of their regular school duties. Most of the classes are very large, and for this reason they are divided into divisions for lecture, laboratory and quiz work. The following classes during the past year have met in divisions: Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry, Histology, Pathology, Urinalysis, Practice of Osteopathy and Clinical Practice.

Requirements for Matriculation.

1. Creditable evidence of good moral character.
 2. Satisfactory evidence of a good English education as follows: (a) In English, an essay of not less than two hundred words, judgment on which will include thought, construction, spelling and handwriting. (b) A good knowledge of arithmetic, including compound numbers, percentage, ratio, proportion and the metric system. (c) A fair knowledge of history and geography, especially of the United States. (d) In physics some knowledge of the fundamental principles. Candidates who fail in one or two of the above named branches may be admitted to the regular course of study, but such condition must be removed before the beginning of the second term.
 3. In place of this examination or any part of it, the faculty will accept the official diploma or certificate of any reputable literary or scientific college, academy, normal school or high school, or a teacher's certificate, and enroll the applicant upon presentation of such certificate or diploma. Candidates are advised to secure a certificate by passing examination in some such institution near home.
- N. B. Students will find it very greatly to their advantage to matriculate before the opening of the term and be in attendance from the opening of the course.

Laboratories.

The school has excellent laboratories for all branches of study where laboratory work is essential. All of these laboratories are supplied with the best and most modern apparatus and so arranged as to accommodate a large number of students at a time. Following is a list of the laboratories: anatomical, chemical, histological, pathological, bacteriological and physiological. In addition the school owns an excellent X-ray machine with all the necessary equipments for work in this line. There are no laboratory fees, the student being allowed the use of the laboratories and materials free of charge, except the price of material for dissection, which $12.50.

The school at all times has abundance of dissecting material on hand, so that those who desire it can take the special course in dissection given under the instruction of the demonstrator of anatomy.

Journal of Osteopathy.

The school maintains one of the largest school journals published in the United States. The JOURNAL OF OSTEOPATHY is devoted to the advancement of the science of osteopathy, it is printed monthly and in no edition are there less than ten thousand numbers sold and distributed. This Journal contains articles from graduates and professors, also clinical reports and many other things that are of interest to those who desire to investigate the science of osteopathy. The subscription price of this Journal is $1.00 per year.

Examinations.

During the last week of each term, students are required to pass examinations upon the work which they have been over during the term in the several classes.

Supplementary or test examinations are held from time to time through the term, by the professors, according to the character of the work in hand. The students are graded, and their standing determined by their records in class recitations and work, in the test examinations, and the term examinations, and they are passed or rejected upon these records.

Registration.

Students will call at the office of the Dean on or before the opening day of the term and register their names and addresses, fill out the matriculation blanks, present their diplomas or certificates or arrange for entrance examination.

N. B.—The registration books will be closed at the end of the first month of each term (Sept. 30, and Feb. 28) and no applicants for matriculation will be enrolled thereafter, until the opening of the next term.

Women Received.

Women are admitted on the same terms as men. It is the policy of the school that there shall be no distinction as to sex, and that all shall have the same opportunities, and be held to the same requirements. They pursue the same studies, attend the same lectures, are subjected to the same rules, and pass the same examinations. Separate reception rooms and all necessary facilities are provided for their comfort and enjoyment.

Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association in the American School of Osteopathy, was organized in the year of 1898, for the purpose common to all similar associations of promoting all around Christian manhood. It holds weekly devotional meetings, conducts a course systematic Bible study, and offers to the students and citizens a very high class course of lectures and concerts.

The new association building has for many years been known as the Luellen House, but in future will be known as the Y. M. C. A. building of the A. S. O., and is situated one block east of the Infirmary, No. 516 E. Jefferson Street.

The association has recently become an incorporated body and has rented the above mentioned building for the purpose of having permanent headquarters of their own and where they can also have furnished rooms to rent to student members at reasonable rates, giving them the advantage of bath-room, electric lights, furnace heat, etc.

The Association reading room will be supplied with as many of the leading periodicals of the day as possible and make the house altogether home like and attractive. New students are invited to come to the association building immediately upon their arrival and every effort possible will be made to aid them in getting boarding places, and getting generally located, as it means much to the new student to get rightly started as early in the term as possible, and the association men will be very glad to render any assistance possible.

DEANS' OFFICE.

Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian Association of the American School of Osteopathy was organized in 1899, for the prosecution of active christian work, particularly among the young women of the institution.

Devotional meetings are held every Friday afternoon and a Bible study class on Sunday. Practical demonstrations in the care of the sick have been given during the year. Receptions for the women of the school have been held from time to time.

This year the Trustees have given the association two rooms and these have been fitted up for parlors for the girls.

Together with the Y. W. C. A. a library and reading room are maintained for the use of the students.

Library and Reading Room.

The Library furnishes excellent facilities for such supplementary reading and study, as students may desire in connection with their regular work. It contains standard text books and works of reference on all subjects having a bearing on the course.

The reading room is also provided with anatomical and physiological charts, with accompanying explanatory keys, skeletons, both articulated and disarticulated, models, diagrams, etc., all of which are at the service of the students under suitable regulations.

NEUROLOGY—Proctor, Potts, Church and Peterson.

In our catalogue of books we have tried to select the best. We are well pleased to know that we have good works on anatomy, not only good, but very excellent and we have listed a few: Gerrish, Morris and Gray. Anatomy is our greatest study. Our surgical skill is measured by our knowledge of anatomy. Our success in obstetrics is measured by what we know of anatomy and physiology. By the way the best works of the world on physiology must be trimmed down a great amount to suit osteopathy. They are too voluminous to be of much use farther than to give us a better knowledge of nature's chemical works.

The books written by osteopaths on all branches are only primary, but we must be content until we can do better. Dr. A. T. Still has now in preparation a work on The Practice of Osteopathy which will be ready for use sometime within the course of a year. When this book is out it will be adopted as our standard work on Practice.

Annual Limitation.

The statement in this announcement relative to the course of study, admission of students, conditions, rules, etc., are for the year ending June 26, 1902, only, and are applicable to all students who may be enrolled during that year. The right is reserved to make such changes in the curriculum, corps of instructors, rules of examination, etc., as may be deemed necessary at any time.

Rules of Conduct.

The school issues no set code of rules to govern the conduct of students while in attendance, but relies on their own sense of honor as ladies and gentlemen to preserve such order and decorum in the lecture room, laboratories, halls, etc., as are everywhere considered necessary and proper in the ordinary relations of life. The student is expected to pursue his studies with diligence, to attend classes regularly and to live in the exercise of morality and good behavior.

The faculty reserves the right to terminate, at any time, the connection of any student with the school, for manifest unfitness for the pursuit of this work, or for gross immorality or disorderly conduct; and no student whose relations are thus severed, by his own acts, has thereafter any claims upon the school.

Students are required to be regular and prompt in attendance. Not more than twenty per cent. of any one term can be excused, and such excuse will be granted only for unavoidable absence, such as sickness. Students absent more than twenty per cent. of any one term will lose that term.

Students are not allowed to practice osteopathy. Students after their third term may assist a regular graduate, provided they do so strictly under the supervision of the graduate.

Students are reminded that the laws of the school are made to be kept and the school intends honestly to carry out its own regulations and the laws of the different states that have recognized osteopathy, so that students need not ask special privileges inconsistent with these laws and regulations.

No student will be excused from school before the close of each term until after the regular examinations have been held. Students not attending the regular final examinations will fail to receive credit for that term's work. In no case will special examinations be held.

Osteopathy,

A History of the Word by the Founder—Dr. A. T. Still's Idea of Knowledge That is Essential to the Osteopath—Anatomy in all its Branches is Fundamental—Dr. Still Created or Coined the Word Osteopathy Twenty Years Ago—He says :

"I had worked and tried to reason that a body that was perfectly normal could keep man in the full enjoyment of health just as long as the body was perfectly normal. On that conclusion, I worked first to know what was normal in form and what was not normal; then I compared the two in disease and health. I found by hard study and experimenting that no human body was normal in bone form whilst laboring under any disease, either acute or chronic. I got good results in adjusting these bodies to such a degree that people began to ask what I was going to call my new science.

I listened to all who thought I ought to name my science, so I began to think over names such as allopathy, hydropathy, homeopathy and other names, and as I was in Kansas when the name Osawatomie was coined by taking the first part of the word Osage and the last part of Pottawattamie and the new word coined represented two tribes of Indians. I concluded I would start out with word os (bone) and the last part of pathology and press them into one word osteopathy.

I wanted to call my science osteopathy and I did not care what Greek scholars said about osteo, osteon, osmosis, exosmosis or endosmosis.

I give the students this bit of history that they may know from me why and when I coined the word. Pathology is a system of treating disease, and the bone is my guide in treating disease, thus bone or osteo-pathology—osteopathy."

In speaking of the importance of anatomy Dr. Still says:

"Gray, Morris and Gerrish's anatomies are our principal text books for all diseases of climate and seasons of this or any other country, for the reason that we want to emphasize that by our knowledge of anatomy we know the normal, the abnormal and the difference between the two conditions. We practice the healing art successfully; we cure diseases by knowing the normal which we learn from anatomy. We have but one subject, which is to learn the normal in form and function of the whole body and to concentrate all our energies to the one object to keep the body in the normal condition. By this, the physiological action may be expected to do normal work, without which diseases as effects of that abnormality appear."

In answer to the question, Why is a student required in a drugless school to study chemistry when he is not expected to use drugs? He says, "Anatomy comprehended and thoroughly understood in all its forms and productions, in all its life sustaining power is the only study that is wholly indispensable to the successful practice of osteopathy, which is the only self evident scientific practice known and propagated to the present day by all schools of the healing arts. Thus I want to implant, imprint, impress and draw your attention without equivocation, to the one fact that anatomy to our school is the mouth-piece, the voice and command of the God of intelligence which is addressed to man for his guidance, his book of philosophy, his book of physiology, his book of chemistry, his book of therapeutics, his book of practice and his magnetic needle that points him forever to all parts and points of physiological perfection and defects, and nature's drug store which contains palliatives, sedatives, stimulants and nature's balm that is now, always has been and ever will be the panacea as given directly from the mind and pen of the University of all truth. I want to impress upon your mind the importance of knowing elementary chemistry well for the amount of assistance it can and does render to the anatomical philosopher when he enters the field of physiology to take his observation and form his conclusions while beholding the form, functions and actions of the laboratory of life, while preparing that cement that unites and forms life and matter.

In regard to surgery for the osteopath, he says:

"In answer to how much surgery the osteopath should have taught to him we will say, that he should be armed with a general knowledge of operative surgery to the degree that the physician when in ordinary practice will always be ready and sensibly qualified to meet all emergencies in common practice; such as setting dislocated shoulders, elbows, wrists and fingers, then the hip, knee, ankle, foot, and bone or bones of the arm and leg. He should know how to adjust fractured ribs and bandage the body to keep such fractures in place until the bones unite. He should be taught to explore and note all dislocations of the spine from the head to the coccyx; and how to adjust and keep in place the many divisions of the spine, the neck, the dorsal, the lumbar, the sacrum and the innominates. He should be and is taught to do such operative surgery, with or without council, as is generally done in small villages and in the country; such as amputations of a toe, a foot, a leg or thigh; how to operate to relieve watery and other deposits of the abdomen and the chest, to remove external growths that appear upon the body at any place.

Then in obstetrics we teach thoroughly and impress good training in the use of instruments in that branch of practice, as we wish him particularly trained for the responsible duties that an hour may throw on him. We teach the use and the administration of anesthetics, and how to proceed in gunshot, knife, saw and other wounds. In short, our school is prepared and intended to qualify its graduates when called in council or to lead, that they may have the necessary information at that time so they will not be handicapped nor embarrassed."

Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association of the American School of Osteopathy holds its annual meeting during commencement week in June.

The officers of the Association for the year closing June 27, 1901, are: Dr. A. L. McKenzie, Kansas City, Mo., President; E. E. Westfall, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, Vice-President; Dr. G. D. Hulett, Kirksville, Mo., Secretary and Treasurer.
